Dear Gordon:

In your postcard, you mentioned something about using drug-resistance in K-12. I think you might be interested in the enclosed draft of a MS I'm polishing up to submit for publication. You're welcome to any of the strains mentioned. If you run across any new and better anti-bacterial agents for this purpose, will you let me know? Streptomycin is fine, but azide and iodoacetate are not all they could be.

Sincerely,

Joshua Lederberg
